BY DANIELE FLORIO, AN ITALIAN IN LOVE WITH COLOMBIA.

“When I arrived to San Andres, I thought I was going to live a dream for five days. Today, I can say I have been living the dream for seven years. When you descend from the plane, you imagine a Caribbean beach, white sand, time at a standstill. What your imagination does not tell you is that the sea can have seven colors, that barracudas have blues eyes, and that the passion of the people is contagious. Before you know it, you fall in love with San Andres, with Colombia, with the idea of continuing to come, or, as in my case, of staying”.

WELCOME.

In the archipelago of San Andres and Providencia, the meaning of 'welcome' has a broad meaning. You will be greeted by warm and sunny Caribbean islands with a rich biodiversity. The millenarian coral reefs, the green hills, and the splendid beaches of white sand, will find ways of saying they are glad to see you.

However, the greatest welcome is extended from the people of this melting pot of races and cultures. These Live Islands are populated by warm and cheerful people of African, European and Asiatic ancestry. All are very friendly, and fluent in English and Spanish. Their smiles are an invitation to discover and experience the beauties the islands hold in their possession.

Please let the Live Islands greet you. ¡Welcome!

San Andres and its Minor Islands are located in the Caribbean Sea, only 400 km southwest of Jamaica and 600 km northwest of South America. With only 27 km², the variety of ecosystems found in these islands is surprising. San Andres is made up of coral reefs and a 130 m high longitudinal north-south mountain range that dresses up the landscape in green with its lavish vegetation.

Your first view from the airplane will reveal the gamut of blues that have made the residents call this part of the Caribbean Sea "the sea of seven colors".

The first settlers were English Puritans who arrived during the XVII century and called the island "Henrietta", in honor of Henry VII. Between 1629 and 1641, more than eight expeditions of Puritans coming from Westminster arrived to settle Henrietta, Old Providence, Saint Catherine, and the nearby islands.

Many english pirates, among them Henry Morgan, made the island their strategic haven for attacking gold-laden Spanish ships. When the island came under the control of a Spanish Vice-royalty, the new settlers changed its name to San Andres. In 1860, the island became part of what is now Colombia.

For over fifty years, it has enjoyed the privileges of a free port. As a result, San Andres is an island full of picturesque contrasts. It is joyful, spontaneous, natural, slightly anarchical in a nice way, and above all, very much alive. This is its foremost attribute.

The residents of the islands, proud of their warm smiles and dark skin, are informal, kind, and care-free. The island does not boast of having the large, artificially sophisticated hotel complexes so common in many Caribbean islands, but it is so full of life and natural charm that this kind of hotel will not be missed.

These are the Live Islands - to enjoy, to protect, to recommend, and, of course, to revisit.

ECOTOURISM.

Ecotourism, a natural carpet of green and blue. Beautiful shades of green in the form of an exotic and exuberant vegetation of bread trees, ceiba trees, palm trees, tropical fruits, coconuts, and flowers of many colors and a variety of birds that includes the endemic San Andres vireo impart gaiety to the landscapes of a unique place: San Andres, Providencia and the minor islands...Live Islands.

Make your discoveries by foot or by horse, but always with a guide. Do not miss the new Botanical Garden in La Loma in San Andres, where traditional medicinal plants show the visitors the valuable flora of the islands. Live Nature at its best!

The sea of seven colors - seven shades of bluish greens and greenish blues - delights tourists and is the perfect scenario for the water sports that can be practiced in the archipelago: windsurfing, diving and snorkeling.

Around the main bay, you will find magical places that you can visit on several kinds of boats: a mysterious pirate galleon, a semi-submersible with a panoramic view of submarine flora and fauna, and a glass-bottomed boat that shows the splendor of tropical fish and long tendrils of coral waving in the crystal waters.

Not-to-be-missed spots are the silent, majestic mangroves; Johnny Cay, where the wilderness bears up against the north winds; and The Aquarium and Haynes Cay, marvelous islets where manta rays can be admired gliding gracefully on the sand. The blue world of the archipelago is immensely attractive and fascinating, an experience to be discovered first-hand. But blue and green are not the only colors.

Sunsets appear in the most celestial shades of pink, lavender, and salmon. For all of the above, and a multitude of things you will discover yourself, UNESCO declared the islands a biosphere reserve in 2001. ¡Long live Nature!

EXPERIENCING THE BEACHES.

The beaches are the favorite attraction of most visitors. The water is calm and safe due the protection offered by the coral reef. They are located on the east coast and on the cays, and are somewhat different from each other. To the north, is Bahia Sardinias with a lovely view of Johnny Cay and the hotel area. Towards the northeast, and framed by the port, is the Bay of San Andres. On the way to the south of the island, are the precious beaches of Cocoplum, San Luis and Sound Bay, each with its own attractions and scenery. All of them replete with life!

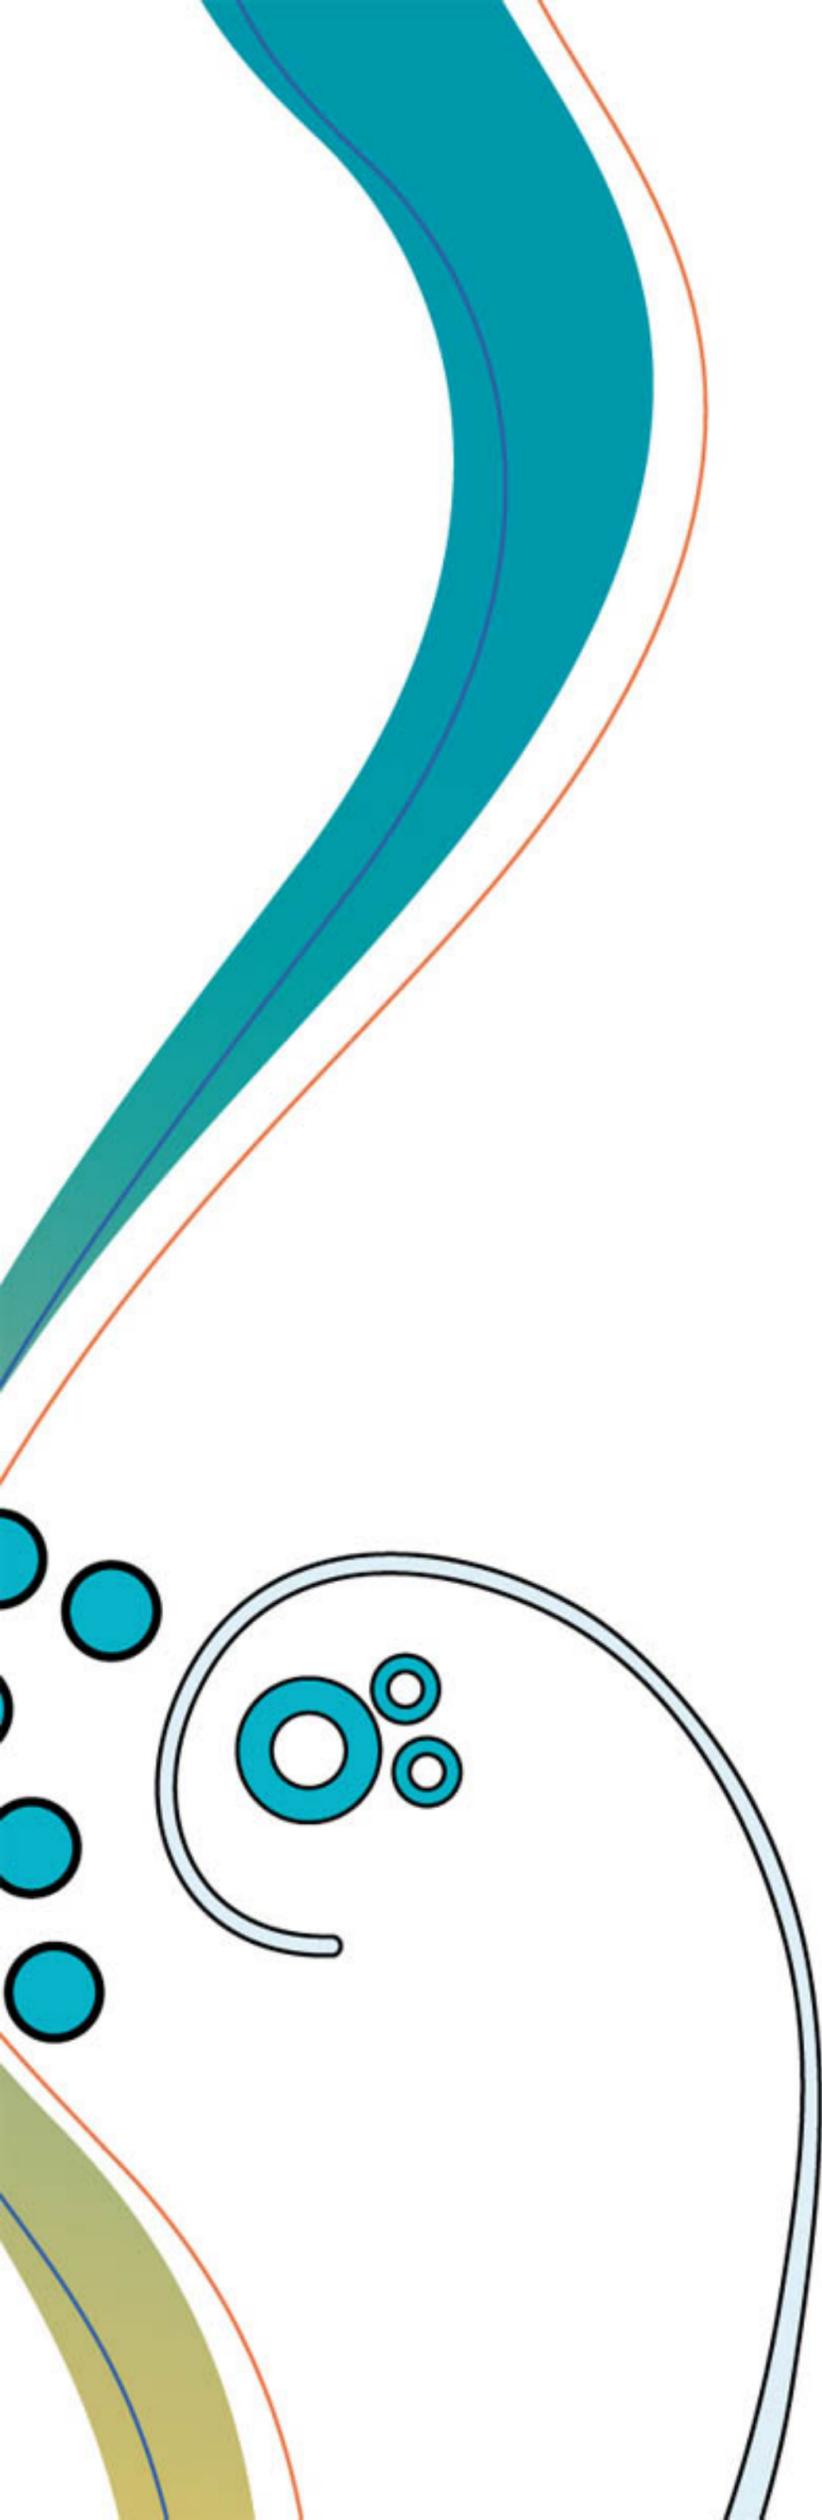

Experience the soft sand and the radiant sunshine. Experience the breeze caressing your skin. Experience the mundane, fun-filled beaches near downtown or choose the intimacy of less-visited corners like Cocoplum Bay, Sound Bay, or Rocky Cay. The beaches of San Andres and Providencia are unique.

Both the islands and the nearby cays enclose dreamy spots of white sand and warm water. They are magical, tranquil, safe beaches framed by blue skies and bathed by crystal-clear waters. The beaches of the archipelago are an invitation to enjoy life.

LIVING FOR DIVING.

The coral reefs are one of the best features of the Archipelago of San Andres and Providencia. The water is clear all year round, making them one of the most beautiful homes for Caribbean fauna and flora.

All who dive here will feel in paradise. All the islands and their cays have a coral barrier that, aside from creating wave-free lagoons, contain ideal nooks for exploring and experiencing submarine adventures. The ease of access in calm and protected waters is the perfect invitation to submerge in places whose names evoke their beauty: Morgan's Sponges, The Sunken Ship, The Caves, Coral View, and Blue Hole, among 40 others.

NAUTICAL SPORTS.

The seascape could not be better on account of its gentle, constant breeze. As if this were not enough, there is a variety of spots for each and every water sport. Windsurfing, kite surfing, dinghy sailing, cruise sailing, skiing, free-lung and tank diving, jet skiing, underwater and height fishing, swimming, and tours to distant cays are all perfectly suited to San Andres.

San Andres offers an ample menu of specialized services in all areas of sea entertainment and adventure. Its marinas and its windsurfing and diving instruction centers are manned by internationally-licensed professionals. The sites for sale or rental of sports equipment are managed by personnel trained to guide casual participants, as well as more devoted practitioners. The island of Providencia also has diving shops and instructors for amateurs. Nautical sports are practiced during the whole year.

INTERESTING SITES.

San Andres offers basically five kinds of sites: The North End, or downtown, is the area for local government and private offices, shops, and hotels. La Loma (the hill) is located in the center and crosses the island from north to south. Its maximum height is 110 meters. This is the main residential sector of San Andres. The Cove is located on the west side. It has beautiful inlets and a new dock for the passenger cruise ships that tour the Caribbean during the winter months. A large coral lagoon, the main beaches, and the traditional San Luis sector are found on the east side. Last but not least, the exotic cays of Johnny Cay and El Acuario emerge two nautical miles away.

EXPERIENCE THE MAGIC OF PROVIDENCIA.

Old Providencia is the sister island of San Andres and is located 80 km to the north, just a short flight away. With a population of only 4,000 inhabitants and an impressive scenery, it is one of the most striking places in the Caribbean.

The volcanic island of Santa Catalina, surrounded by a superb coral barrier, is separated from Providencia by a narrow channel and joined to it by the Lover's Bridge. A smaller pearl, but just as beautiful. Its lush natural beauty makes it the ideal spot for true relaxation of body and mind.

THE NEARBY CAYS.

The nearby cays, less than two kilometers from the island, are two spectacular islets that break the line of the horizon on the northeastern side of San Andres and may be easily reached by small boats.

The waters that bathe the cays create spectacular beaches. The Johnny Cay Regional Park, to which visitors contribute an Ecological Fee for its maintenance, El Acuario, and Haynes Cay are ideal spots for spending an unforgettable day in the shade of the palm trees while enjoying the food, the beverages, the beach, nature and the sea.

THE DISTANT CAYS.

Sixteen nautical miles southwest of the islands is the Bolivar Cay, one of the most beautiful cays of the archipelago. When the sea is calm, the trip can be accomplished in about an hour. This is another paradise for divers and snorkelers on account of its extensive coral barrier.

Albuquerque Cay, 30 nautical miles to the south, is composed of two cays separated by a distance of 300 meters, and also surrounded by an extensive coral barrier. A small paradise of great beauty.

CULTURE AND FOLKLORE.

Tradition is very important to the islanders. The 20th of July, the 7th of August, and the 12th of October national holidays, as well as the religious holidays of their Protestant faith, are celebrated with great enthusiasm, islanders have declared music to be their muse. Everything seems to revolve around it. Reggae and Calypso have made an imprint on several generations. Their traditional dances, inherited from the English, are the Schotis and the Jumping Polka, frequently refreshed in the collective memory through the practice of native groups.

The November patron feasts, the biannual Theater Festival, parades like the Flower Festival (imported from Medellin), the recently reactivated Green Moon Festival, and quite a few other culture and folk festivals bring together islanders and visitors and prove that the customs, the culture, and the folklore are very much alive.

NATIVE INNS.

The Native Inns program is a priority of the National Government and is being carried out by the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Tourism. Its objective is to create lodgings in family homes for the tourists who seek direct contact with the people of the island. There is an interesting offering of this type of accommodation in San Andres, Providencia and Santa Catalina.

CRUISES.

From October to May, large cruise ships tour the Caribbean Sea. Several itineraries include a stop in San Andres. The new dock at The Cove welcomes cruise ships and is large enough for three tender boats to carry visitors from the ships to the dock. Tax-free shopping downtown, strolls, and tours of the island are natural the activities of the visitors arriving on ships. San Andres will always surprise this type of visitor. Visitors make favorable comments on the friendliness of the people and the marvels of the scenery.

WEDDINGS.

Marriages made in heaven, weddings on the archipelago. At last, it is possible for foreigners, eighteen years and over, and for Colombians who do not reside on the islands, to get married in San Andres or Providencia before a judge, a notary, or an authorized religious minister, providing they present their passports or Colombian ID cards. San Andres and Providencia offer countless sea and landscapes for the ceremony and the party. Under the water or under the stars, you can give way to your imagination and select the appropriate scenario for a romantic and unforgettable wedding. Local tour operators are qualified to make the necessary arrangements, including the reception, the flowers, and the cake. Bring your family, bring your friends, and you will have the perfect wedding in the perfect place.

LIVE GASTRONOMY IN THE ISLAND OF SAN ANDRES.

The virtually myriad combinations of fish, crabs, lobsters or squid with coconuts and the fruit of the bread tree passed down by English settlers, pirates, slaves, and pastors add up to a unique, magical, and traditional cuisine.

The seven-colored sea is the enormous marine pantry of our restaurants. The famous Colombian rum is the basis of many island cocktails.

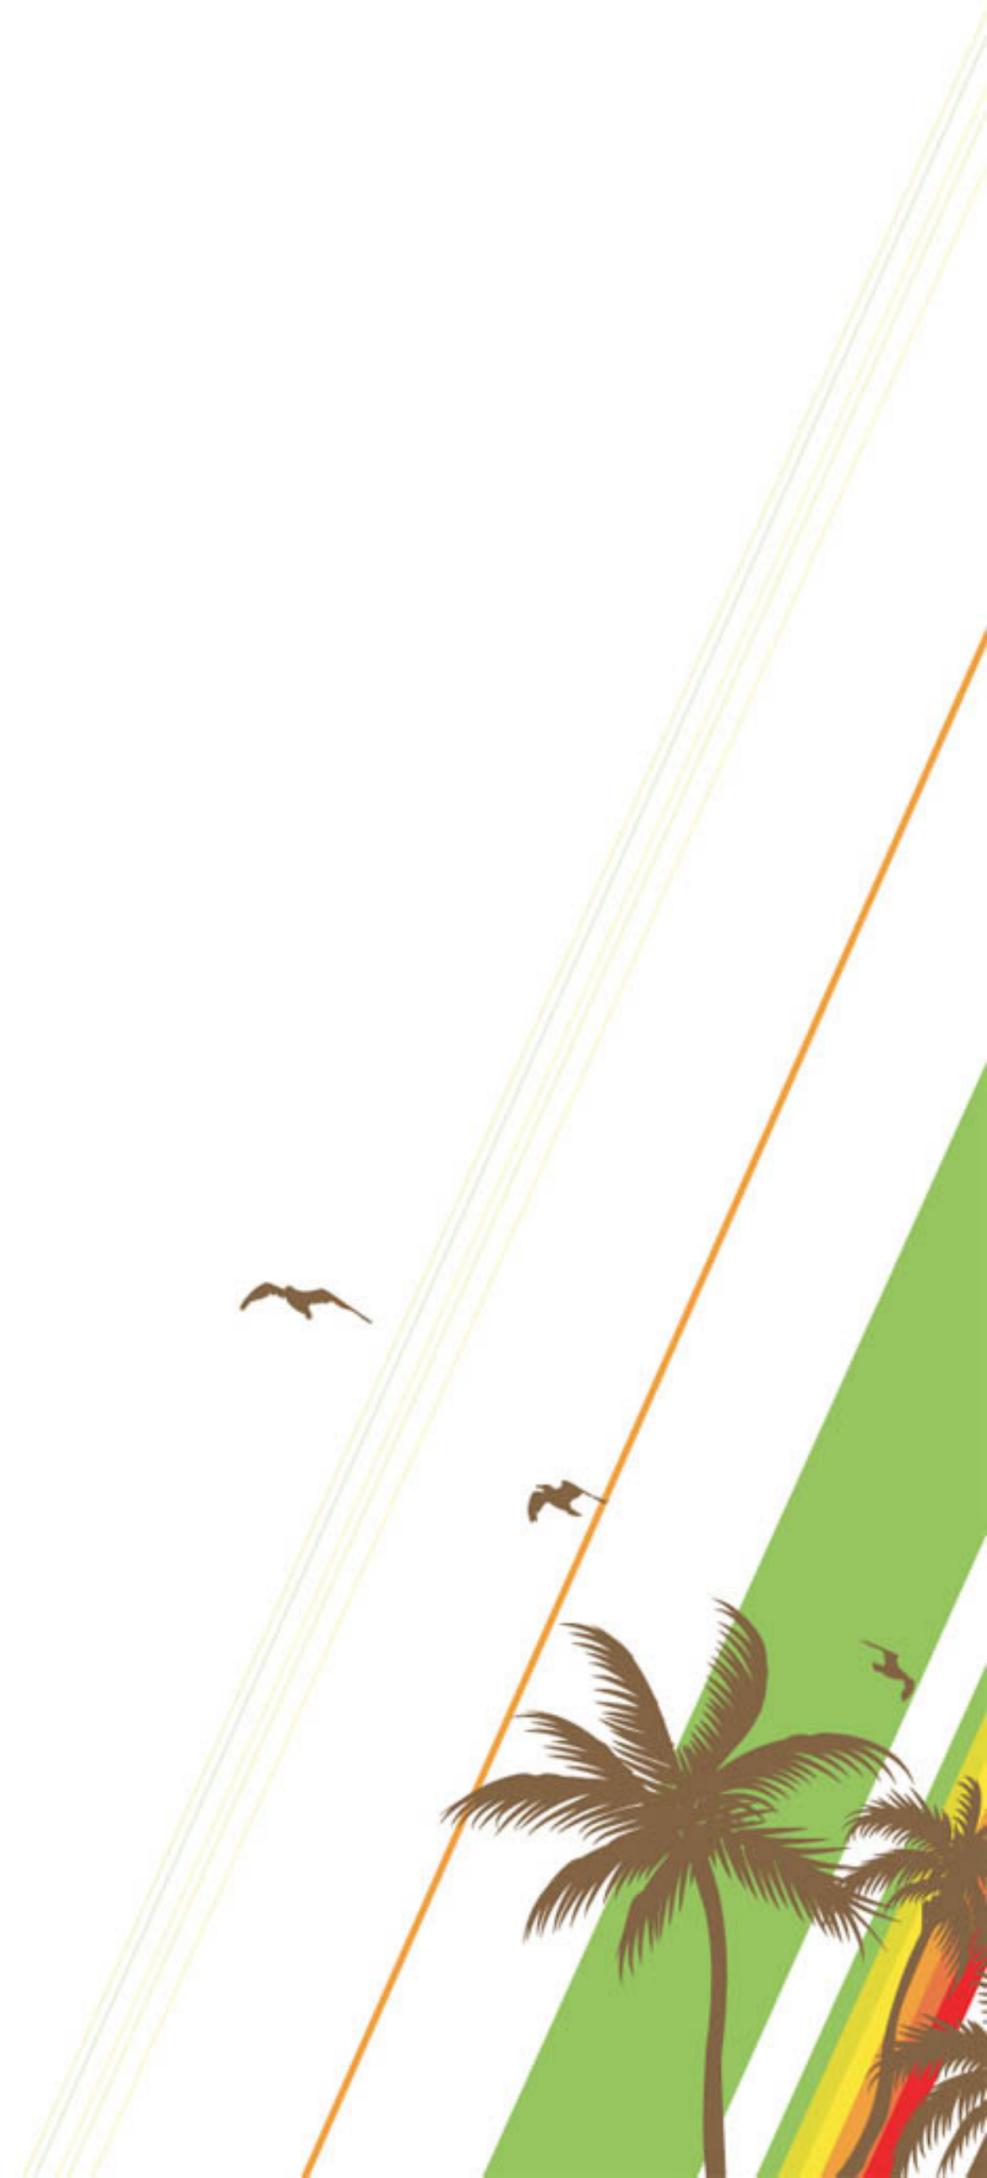

The very original preparations of our chefs can be found practically everywhere, including the beaches and the pedestrian walkway. Unique dishes like fish au coral, snailballs, coconut squid, fried fish, lobster in coconut sauce, snail rundown, ceviche, and the famous crab back delight locals and visitors. And do not leave without tasting the crab soup. Its aroma is everywhere. All you have to do is follow it.

Bakery confections, desserts, and sweets can easily break your diet. Be sure to try a lemon pie, an upside-down pineapple cake, a cocoy pie and the yumbalin sweets.

And either before or after, bartenders allow yourself to be charmed with the famous Coco Loco (crazy coconut), the Blue Hawaiian, the passion-fruit caipiroska, or the Live Islands cocktail, the new cocktail recipe of the San Andres jet set.

Summing up, San Andres treats its guests as kings and invites them to the pleasures of good eating and sophisticated drinking. The memory of a good dish, the careful attention, and the aroma of good food are part of what we invite you to experience in our bars and restaurants.

Long live the gastronomy of the San Andres Live Islands.
